

Acknowledgements

The successful organisation of this event would have been impossible without the contribution of the following individuals and organisations.

First and foremost, we are indebted to a number of sponsors for their generous support of ISTAL 19. Without this support our symposia would just not take place and this volume would not materialise. They are gratefully acknowledged below.

We must also thank Valandis Bartzokas and Dimitra Kokarida for their dedicated proofreading. However, the responsibility for the papers lies ultimately with their authors as they have all been asked to proofread them at the pre-print stage.

We are grateful to the secretaries of the School of English and to Lia Efstathiadi for assistance and expert advice in all things practical, and especially to our untiring computer maven, Tasos Paschalis, for general support in technical matters, as well as for the development and maintenance of the Symposium's website. We must also thank the print and copy house “Monochromia” for the unfailing and efficient support they have provided to our symposia over the years.

Special thanks go to our students who helped in multiple ways towards the smooth running of the event, before its opening and while it lasted. But it was also very rewarding for us as teachers to see our students attending the event in big numbers. We thank our congress agent Palandjian World for general management and for putting together the social programme, and Porto Palace Hotel for providing the venue, facilities and stationary material, and for making our present authors’ (the delegates’ at the time of the event) stay at the hotel comfortable. Thanks are also due to the Greek National Tourism Organisation (E.O.T.) for providing us with maps of Thessaloniki.

Eliza Kitis wishes to personally thank the painter Stelios Mavromatis for producing such a beautiful painting of the port of Thessaloniki, unwittingly depicting the venue of the 19th Symposium, and now gracing the cover of the volume.

We kept our warmest thanks last; they undoubtedly go to Cleopatra Kontoulis and Mara Tsoumari, the remaining two members of the Organising Committee of ISTAL 19, without whose commitment, dedication and skills, the organisation of the Symposium would have been a much harder feat.

Finally, we wish to express our deep sorrow for the untimely death of Pavlos Pavlou (1964-2010), a distinguished and esteemed colleague, Associate Professor at the University of Cyprus and regular participant of ISTAL, including the 19th Symposium. We miss him dearly as does this volume his contributions, which went amiss en route. This volume is dedicated to his memory.
